A Story Of Truxton King
By George Barr
Graustark McCutcheon

SYNOPSIS OF FIRST CHAPTER.
Truxton King, an American millionaire's son, tired of the humdrum life and sets out to have some adventures. He reaches the kingdom of Graustark.

Mr. King was inspired to fabricate in the interest of psychology.

"I have heard that you are not the piece of old man Spantz." He watched intently to catch the effect of the declaration.

"You have heard nothing of the kind," she said coldly.

"Well, I'll confess I haven't," he admitted cheerfully. "It pleases me to deduce that you are not related to the armor."

Now she smiled divinely. "And why not, pray? His sister was my mother."

"In order to establish a line on which to base my calculations, would you mind telling me who your father is?"

He asked the question with his most appealing smile, a smile so frankly impudent that she could not resent it.

"My father is dead," she said seriously, "and my mother is dead. Now can you understand why I am living here with my uncle? Even an amateur may rise to that. Now, sir, do you expect to purchase the sword? If not I shall replace it in the window."

"That's what I came here for," said he, resenting her tone and the icy look she gave him.

"I gathered that you came in the capacity of Sherlock Holmes or something else." She added the last three words with unmistakable meaning.

She was leaning toward him, her hands on the counter, a peculiar gleam in her dark eyes, which now for the first time struck him as rather more keen and penetrating than he had suspected before.

"I simply want to tell you, Mr. King, that unless you really expect to buy this sword it is not wise in you to make it an excuse for coming here."

"My dear young lady, I—"

"My uncle has a queer conception of the proprieties. He may think that you come to see me. Young men may chat with shopgirls all the world over, but in Edelweiss, no, unless they come to pay most honorable court to them. My uncle would not understand."

"I take it, however, that you would understand," he said boldly.

"I have lived in Vienna, in Paris and in London, but now I am living in Edelweiss. I have not been a shopgirl always."

"I can believe that. My deductions are justified."

"My uncle is returning," she remarked suddenly. "I must not talk to you

THE STAR PITCHERS.

Some very good pitching has been done in both the National and the American league games this season, and among the leading twirlers are some old favorites.

In the National Mathewson, the great leader, while in the American league Willett of Detroit caps every body. Of the Texas pitchers among the ten leaders only Karger, with Boston, shows up. He is seventh on the list, having won four and lost one. He formerly pitched for both San Antonio and Houston. He went from here to St. Louis and from St. Louis to Pittsburgh. Willett resulted in his being transferred to Boston, where this year he has been making more than good. His batting is also one of the features of the big league.

In the National league the pitchers rank as follows: Mathewson, won 3, lost 1; Rowan, Cincinnati, won 4, lost 1; Crandall, New York, won 3, lost 1; Suggs, Cincinnati, won 7, lost 2; Lush, St. Louis, won 6, lost 3; Gasper, Cincinnati, won 7, lost 4; Rucker, Brooklyn, won 8, lost 5; Barger, Brooklyn, won
